World's Biggest GAMES DAY
What will you play?
What is Lifelites' World's Biggest Games Day?

Despite isolation due to Covid-19, people all over the British Isles are hosting their own Games Day with friends and family in their households, including virtual games. Donations are made to Lifelites.

How you can get involved:

1. Get your household together
2. Play games of your choice!
3. Create some smiles
4. Collect some money
5. Send your money to Lifelites via www.lifelites.org/donate or use the QR Code above.

Why we want you to be part of it:

Even though we find ourselves isolated and separated from friends and family, we can still play games together! It's a perfect way to connect with our loved ones and create smiles for a great cause. Thousands of children in hospices encounter difficulties playing games and are at particular risk due to coronavirus. The money you raise will help every child in a hospice to have the chance to play and enjoy life to the fullest.

What is Lifelites?

For most children, growing up is about playing with brothers & sisters, making friends, and having fun. For children with life-limited illnesses and disabilities using children’s hospice services, these ordinary childhood activities are often out of reach. Lifelites donates life-changing technology to give children using hospice services across the British Isles a chance to escape the confines of their conditions, break free from isolation, communicate with their family, and to play for as long as possible.
We appreciate that due to Covid-19, many people can't physically play with their friends and families or might live alone. We have plenty of tips on how to overcome that!

Download the app Houseparty where you can video call with other people and play games at the same time!

Do you like video games? If you don't have one already, create an account on Twitch and ask people to donate to Lifelites while playing your favourite games.

Do you miss the Pub quiz nights? Host your own quiz night on Zoom!

Want to make your Games Day stand out from the crowd? How about creating a challenge with a score board to get some publicity?

Do you have a fundraising target you want to reach? Include this in a press release or tweet to encourage more people to join your virtual pub quizzes or video game marathons. Contact hfuchs@lifelites.org for a press release template.
Are you hosting your Games Day for a particular reason or person? Personal stories and anecdotes are popular with the media, so if you’d like people to know more about your inspiration for fundraising for Lifelites, why not share it?

Advertise your event on social media – Facebook, Twitter, Instagram. Remember to include all of the key details – date, time, the host, and the weblink to your event.

Look out for other ways to raise awareness of your event, such as local newsletters it can be mentioned in. The local newspaper In Your Area is looking for event tips happening online!

Get some great photos of your event. Take pictures that make the most impact – shots including your games, photos of anything unusual or just look fun, and of course, shots of all the gamers (with their permission), smiles and winners!

Make sure you share how much fun you had Fun-Raising for Lifelites. Use tags such as: “We played [xxxxx] for #LifelitesGamesDay to help @LifelitesOrg give life-limited children in hospices a chance to play through the power of #MagicalTechnology. Find out more: www.lifelites.org”
Team up with your flatmates or family in your household to make your Games Day a true team effort!

Simply write the names of people you want to lend a hand, and use the cards as a way to persuade them to join your dream team.

Once they're on board, think of different things they can be in charge of, such as decorating, choosing games, collecting gaming equipment, or creating fundraising competitions!
